

Healthway

Healthway, the WA Health Promotion Foundation, is a state government agency dedicated to funding community activities that promote good health in Western Australia, with a particular focus on young people.

Healthway was established in 1991 with its first task of replacing all tobacco company sponsorships of sport, racing and cultural events throughout Western Australia with sponsorships promoting health messages.

Healthway sponsorships have been very successful in helping to reduce smoking in WA through promoting non-smoking messages and by creating smoke free environments at public venues long before laws banning smoking were introduced.

The lessons we have learned in reducing smoking in our community are crucial as we face the new health challenges of overweight and obesity, alcohol misuse and mental health problems. This is why Healthway sponsorships of sport, arts and racing activities also promote healthy eating, safe alcohol consumption and positive mental health.

Healthway has strong partnerships with many organisations and, in the 2010/11 financial year, we sponsored around 730 different sports, arts and racing organisations with a total of over $10 million.

Healthway encourages sponsorship applications from community groups with activities that can promote positive and healthy lifestyle messages.
